Black History Month

Black History Month is here again, marking the annual celebration and homage to Black history, achievements, and contributions throughout time. As well as celebrating Black history and culture, the event also aims to reduce discrimination against Black people and foster racial equality.

We will be exploring many different black men and women who have and continue to positively contribute to our world. Being able to highlight the outstanding contributions of Black people to society and the world helps to break down people's prejudices.

Movie Night
